

WeRateDogs is a popular social media platform on major social media sites that rates dogs and encourages people to post about their pet dogs which are later rated. It is meant to be a light-hearted communion of individuals who have an appreciation for their pet dogs.

The posts generate funny comments and the dogs are rated with a higher numerator than the denominator, WeRateDogs considers every dog as better than 10/10, and rates them usually between 10/10 and 15/10. As of September 6, 2022, they have over 9 million followers on Twitter and over 600,000 people who follow them on Facebook with 590,000 likes on their page.

WeRateDogs has developed their own dog classification, based on the dog's age and appearance. Puppies are "puppers", older puppies are "puppos", older puppers are "doggos" and hairy dogs (or almost every dog) are "floofers".

Because of the popularity of the page, we are going to assess some numbers and extract statistics from the tweets. Omitting details about how the data was gathered and cleaned, we will operate on the that the maximum value of the rating numerator is 15 and everything above is an outlier.

For the visualization, we will look at the correlation between Retweets and favorites.
